Date: Monday, 13 November 2017

Time: 12:00 – 13:30

Organized by: ICLEI USA and 350.org

Session type: Panel Discussion

Level of access: Open

Session description:

The United States' commitment to climate action has waned at the federal level, making diverse and passionate voices from grassroots U.S. representatives more critical than ever. This panel brings together a group of citizen activists, local government staff and members of the youth and environmental justice communities to discuss what's working and what's not working for climate action and adaptation in U.S. communities. The stories put forth in the session aim to inform climate policy around the world and better prepare communities for climate change by inserting the People's perspectives into the COP dialogue space.
